

No Hyperscale Data Centers IN FLORIDA

TAKE ACTION

Contact Your County Commissioners

Your county is the front line. Your voice decides.

County commissioners have the authority to approve — or prohibit — hyperscale data centers. They answer to you. A few respectful, informed contacts from residents can change the outcome.

1 Find your commissioners

Look up your county and district on our website to get names and contact information.

2 Send a short, clear message

Email or call. State that you are a constituent and that you oppose hyperscale data centers in your county.

3 Show up and speak

Attend a commission meeting and give public comment. In-person voices carry weight.

4 Bring your neighbors

Share this flyer. Numbers matter — the more residents who speak up, the stronger the message.

Keep it brief and respectful: who you are, where you live, and that you want your commissioners to protect the county from hyperscale data centers.
